Ben — It's sure good to see you after being away so long. We missed you more than you know. I admire your freespirt and guests to travel. It's such a great way to meet new people and make new friends. It's a great way to test your "mettal". Hope you recover from S. infect. soon. You're too young to be ill! Take care of yourself. I should join. Best wishes

This eve we are finally greeting our honorable guest from the far western shore of the Americas; who has ventured from his home in the pine fringed Pacific coastline of remote Oregon; joining a caravan of capricious, fang-toothed gypsies from the wild interior, rolling on painted wagons through country so pestilential with carnivorous natives, even Old James, beside me now, is agape in wonder at the tales of this outsider's journey. But what is such a cart ride through green hills by comparison to the wondrous unnamed horrors of the ocean?

I will not put my pen this eve to the task of recounting the trials we survived, nay, I say "attempting to account", for even our glorious language hath not words enough, nor I such potent diction, to fairly tell of what monstrous injustice Providence hath paid us since paying in the anchor at Valparaiso but three months ere. Suffice to say that all but five of my beloved crew were spared by the good Lord to set their damp feet on England's green and pleasant land once more. I will list them now: my beloved, Emma the wench, Red Red Robin Red Breast, Old James (Lazy Eyed Jim), Wretched Rachel, and of course, Accursed, Curdle Blooded Christ!

Kisses like leeches, suck out the whole of disparity. Run into the arms of christlike, complicit, so-called
kin. Neither need discern; wavering, undignified, are the lengthy origins, but not for want of safe harbour. We intuit our fall,
move through vast fields,
our pain face to face,
as we stumble forth blind.

 I walked across soil & wood lead possible lovers into the drainage ditcher before digging into the forests with my teeth. I only hope for please & thank you's.
